Chief, CIA Historical Staff

SUBJECT : Data Base Manager

REFERENCE : Memo to Each Addee from DD/A, dated 11 June 1974; Subject: ADP Resource Allocation System

1. As the MAP programs come on-line, it is apparent that there will be competition and conflict between the user components for resource allocation. There will also be disagreements between components relative to policies concerning file access, update, and data base utilization.

2. If compromise and agreement between using components is not possible, a decision will have to be made by a third party. Forcing OJCS into the position of rendering such decisions makes its function as a service organization untenable. To provide a means of resolving such conflicts as they arise or in anticipation of their arising, I am designating [redacted] as Directorate Data Base Manager. In this capacity, he shall have the responsibility and authority to arbitrate conflicts between and among the components of this Directorate, resolving such conflicts in such a fashion as to accomplish the most effective utilization of the ADP resources for the benefit of the Directorate as a whole.
